

ABSTRACT

A system comprising a first board for electrical communication with a second board, at least one electrical communication connector positioned on one side of said first board, and slots constructed in said first board, said slots adapted for allowing at least one electrical communication connector positioned on said second board to mate through said slots with said first board electrical communication connector.